

Composition Competition 2022

SUMS is excited to announce its 2022 choral composition competition, open to all students and members of AICSA choirs!

About SUMS: We are a non-auditioned choir of singers who are passionate about making music together. We love a challenge, but many of us are not fluent readers and some of us are new to singing. Part of the consideration of the composition will therefore be the suitability of the music to the choir.

Criteria:

- Entrant: Must be a student of a school, university, conservatorium or other tertiary institution.¹
- Deadline: 11:59 pm, November 30 2022.
- Length: The ideal length is 4-8 minutes.
- Instrumentation: SATB Choir with minimal divisi. Optional piano. Please feel free to write a comprehensive piano part. One or two solo instruments may also be added (e.g. solo violin and flute).
- Theme: There will be two categories for entries to the competition:
Category A: Open category. Can be any theme/genre.
Category B: A piece with a Christmas or festive/holiday theme to be performed at the end of the year.
Entrants may enter into either or both categories, and can submit multiple entries.
- Lyrics: Text must be in the public domain, preferably in English.

Submission: Please send your submission and any inquiries to sumssubmission@gmail.com.

In your submission please include:

- A pdf score of your submission,
- an mp3 recording (midi or live),
- a short blurb about your composition (no longer than 100 words),
- which category (or categories) you are entering into.

¹If this is not you and you still wish to enter, contact us.

Submissions will be judged by a panel consisting of SUMS committee members and the SUMS musical director on the basis of suitability to the concert programme and performability.² Applicants will have their names removed from the compositions so as to minimise risk of bias. The decision of the panel will be final.

Winners will be announced before the end of February. Winners will receive a prize of $150 and tickets to hear their work performed at a SUMS concert, most likely in 2023.

²SUMS reserves the right not to award any entrants as winners where no entries were suitable for performance.
